Bramblewick Events: Brand and Tone Guide (v3, September 2026)

Who we are

Bramblewick Events plans conferences, trade shows and community events across the Pacific Northwest. We are a team of 14 based in Portland, Oregon. Our promise to clients: "Every detail handled, nobody left out."

Voice

Warm, plain and specific. We write like a helpful person, not a brochure. Short sentences. We use "we" and "you". We never use exclamation marks in client emails, and at most one in attendee emails.

Words we use and avoid

Use: attendee (not "delegate"), session (not "breakout"), accessible (not "handicap"), dietary needs (not "special meals").
Avoid: "world-class", "seamless", "synergy", "game-changing", "cutting-edge".

Formats

Client emails: a one-line purpose, then at most three short paragraphs, then the next step with a date. Attendee emails: subject line under 50 characters, the key fact in the first sentence. Dates are written as Thursday, December 10. Times as 9:30 AM. Prices always include whether tax and service are included.

Sign-off

Client emails end with the planner's name and direct line. Attendee emails end with "The Bramblewick team" and the help address help@bramblewick.example.com.
